What is the type of capacity you look to build through this project?

In one or two sentences, describe the specific new or added results you anticipate for both the organization and those you serve.

New/Added Results:

Decreased time to get to results
- Reducing the time it takes to enable participants to achieve results is a benefit to those you serve and may even enable you to increase the number of people you reach or reduce costs to the organization.

Increase number served - New capacity may enable the organization to serve a larger part of the community in need.

Increased results for those served - An improvement may prompt better results in two distinct areas: more people achieve the result you intended and/or additional results are achieved:

Increased revenue - Through diversified sources of income generation or other steps, the organization builds income from new capacity. Think of revenue gains also in terms of volunteers and donated resources for which you would otherwise pay.

Reduced costs - Improvements in efficiency, whether in the area of internal operations (e.g., reduced overhead) or program services (e.g., time saved and re-allocated), that will make /the organization more sustainable.

What is the challenge or opportunity this proposal aims to solve for its participants, the community or the sector? What critical unmet need is being addressed?

Results are not activities, such as participation in workshops. They are specific, verifiable changes in behavior, made possible by these activities. Please note the difference between the number of persons to be served, versus the number of participants who will achieve the desired result. The number to be served should be larger than the number to achieve the result. To develop a strong results statement, follow these four steps:

- (1) Identify the changes in behavior you seek for your core participants,
- (2) Specify the degree of behavioral change you consider a success,
- (3) Estimate how many participants will achieve that degree of change within the grant period, and
- (4) Express your anticipated results in an overall results statement, including number to benefit, how they will benefit and by when.

In one or two sentences, please outline the impact you anticipate your core participants will achieve by the end of the grant period, including how many of those individuals will achieve success.

Racial and ethnic diversity of those you serve and the providers serving those in need:

	Served	Providers
American Indian or Alaska Native
